Next Sunday Brotherhood Anniversary.

On next Sunday the Brotherhood Bible Class of St. John's Reformed Sunday School will celebrate the first anniversary of its organization. This will be a great day for the Brotherhood Class as all the services of the day will be in honor of the occasion. Dr. A. W. Lamar, of Georgia, one of the really great lecturers upon the American platform today, who will deliver his lecture upon the subject: "Dixie before and during the War", in Assembly Hall on next Monday night, has been secured to preach the Anniversary sermon, at 7.30 p. m. Moreover, Dr. Lamar will preach a short sermon at the hour for worship, eleven o'clock, Sunday morning. No man ever came to Bedford with a greater reputation as a popular speaker than that which is accorded to Dr. Lamar. "The vast audience held spell-bound" is the manner in which scores of testimonials refer to his effort. The Brotherhood boys are not willing to have the privilege of hearing him for themselves alone. They want their friends to share this blessing with them. The committee in charge of the decoration of the church are sparing themselves no pains to make this a feature of the day. Special effort is being put forth to make ample provisions for the accommodation of all of the friends of the class, hence a most cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend all of the services on next Sunday.

Knights of Columbus Entertain.

A progressive 500 party was given by the Knights of Columbus in their rooms in the Ridenour building on Wednesday evening. There were ten tables in play. The ladies' first and second prizes were won by Miss Helena Donahoe, and Mrs. George Biser, and the men's by John A. Donahoe, and Clarence Fletcher, respectively. After presentation of the prizes, delicious refreshments were served.

Hiram Hamilton.

Hiram Hamilton, a resident of Saxton, died at 11.35 o'clock Sunday night, January 23, of pneumonia, at the Altoona hospital, where he was admitted on January 11. He was aged 39 years and was married. His wife survives with several other relatives.

John Fulton.

John Fulton, one of the best known citizens of Johnstown, died Thursday evening, January 20, at his home in that city. Mr. Fulton had a national reputation as a geologist. He was 65 years old. Mr. Fulton visited Bedford frequently and had a wide circle of friends in this county.

HOMESTEADER MAKES GOOD

D. F. Klotz. Formerly From New Enterprise, Now Prosperous Farmer in South Dakota.

Started With Nothing and in Ten Years Worth 6 or 7 Thousand Dollars.

D. F. Klotz of Kadoka, South Dakota, formerly from New Enterprise, Morrison's Cove, tells of his wonderful progress and thrift in the West since he left one of the best farming regions in this section of the State. Mr. Klotz left for the West in the Spring of 1902. He first hired on a farm for two years at $20 per month and invested his wages in stock. At the end of two years he began operating his farm, hiring out all his spare time and taking his spare money to invest in young stock. During the last year he gives the following sales:

Cattle	$1,294.00
Cream from nine Cows	336.87
Hogs	59.75
Eggs	3.32
Labor	19.50

Total receipts $1,712.94

Ten years ago when he first started out he had only a shock worth $40. Today he has nice big farm buildings, house of modern type and an inventory of his belongings makes him worth in property alone besides some cash in bank, as follows:

Cattle, 46 head	$2,070.00
Horses, 8 head	600.00
Other Live Stock	25.00
Real Estate, including all improvements	3,000.00
Fifty tons rough feed on hand	200.00
Grain, 175 bushels	70.00
Potatoes, 30 bushels	15.00
Meat	15.00
Wagons, harness, machinery, etc.	350.00
Total	$6,345.00
Outstanding debts	225.00

Total Invoice $6,120.00

With at least $7,000 in cash and in property above all living expenses is a great record. We hope that all other Bedford County boys who seek homes in the West are just as prosperous and that a Gazette may find its way into every home as a token of memory from the county which gave them birth.

"As oft as the sun sinks into the West, My heart goes back to the home nest. And tho I may wander by land or by sea, I know there's a light in the window for me."

He was elected one of the members of the council and was also superintendent of the Sunday School. On account of failing health he went to Goldsboro a little over a year ago. Though his health had been failing for a number of years, his death was unexpected and came as a great surprise to his many friends in Broad Top. DISPOSAL OF DEAD ANIMALS

Burying or Burning All Carcasses Will Reduce Spread of Infectious Diseases.

Often when animals die on the farm no disposal is made of their carcasses other than to drag them into a field or a near-by woods, where they are left on the surface of the ground to decompose or to be eaten by buzzards, crows, dogs, and other scavengers, or animals which feed on carrion.

This practice can not be too severely condemned, because it contributes seriously to the dissemination of disease germs and the perpetuation of infectious diseases.

The carcasses of animals which have succumbed to infectious diseases like anthrax, hog cholera, black-leg, tuberculosis, etc. are charged with myriads of virulent disease germs, and just as long as they remain where scavengers can reach them and portions of them can be carried away promiscuously, they are a dangerous menace over a large territory to all animals which are liable to be attacked by disease germs. Even carcasses of animals which have died from other causes than infectious diseases, unless they are disposed of in a proper way, are a source of danger. Left on the surface of the ground their odor soon invites scavengers to congregate and to bring with them the infectious material with which they may have become contaminated by eating carrion elsewhere.

Dead animals on the farm should be buried deep enough to prevent them from being dug up again, or they should be burned. To burn large carcasses like those of dead horses and cattle is difficult and laborious and requires a large quantity of fuel. In most instances it is more economical to bury them. All animals which have died of infectious diseases and are buried should be covered with a heavy layer of lime before the graves are closed.

In the winter when the ground is frozen, it is more difficult to dig graves than at other seasons of the year, but it is just in cold weather that disease germs remain alive and virulent longest in dead organic matter and that scavengers travel the longest distances, have the best appetites, and are most likely to carry disease germs on and in their bodies. The extra trouble of digging graves in the winter is easily offset by the greater danger it counteracts. Low temperature prevents the multiplication of disease germs, but many kind of disease germs are not killed or deprived of their pernicious possibilities by exposure to a lower temperature than the lowest reached during an icy, arctic winter.

Everywhere farmers not only should attend to the proper and safe disposal of the bodies of their own animals which unfortunately die, but they should insist on the proper disposal of the bodies of all animals which die anywhere in the regions in which their farms are located.

PREVENTING MOTTLED BUTTER.

Mottled butter is frequently found on the market at this time of the year, and, even though it may be of very good flavor, it is strongly discriminated against by the purchaser. As this defect is one of workmanship it can be overcome by the application of proper methods on the part of the buttermaker.

Mottles are caused primarily by an uneven distribution of salt in the butter. This may be produced by inefficient working of the butter or by burning, washing and working it at a very low temperature, or by washing or working it at a temperature several degrees higher or lower than the churning temperature.

When the quantity of butter made in one churning is much less than usual, it is necessary to work it a greater number of revolutions of the churn than usual in order to produce the same results on the butter.

Extremely low temperatures of churning, washing, and working should be avoided, because they produce so firm a butter that it is only with great difficulty that the salt can be worked uniformly into it. High temperatures of churning, washing, and working must be avoided to prevent an abnormal loss of fat in the buttermilk and also the making of a greasy, leaky butter.

Great variations in temperature during the manufacturing process should always be avoided. Under normal conditions the temperature of the wash water should be the same as, or within 2 degrees of, that of the buttermilk.

When the churn room is so cold that the butter becomes chilled before working is completed, mottled butter is frequently the result. To prevent this it is preferable to increase the amount of working rather than to raise the temperature of the wash water.

Mottled butter, then, may be prevented by using methods that will insure a uniform distribution of salt.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

OUT-DOOR SLEEPING

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., LL. D., Commissioner of Health.

That which is looked upon as a fad today becomes the necessity of tomorrow. This is largely the case with out-door sleeping.

With the beginning of the active campaign against tuberculosis but a few years or so ago, out-door sleeping was recommended for those suffering from tuberculosis and others whose general physical condition seemed to warrant it.

These pioneers were looked upon by their friends and neighbors with interest and they openly expressed belief that if they survived this exposure, which was doubtful, they would soon tire of the experiment anyhow. As a matter of fact there are a hundred open air sleepers today where there was one a decade ago and it is no longer limited to those who are in ill health.

All who have tried open air sleeping are enthusiastic about it and they constitute an ever growing group.

A sleeping porch is coming to be looked upon as an essential part of the home. Whole families have taken to sleeping in the open and have been so benefited by it that they would never consider anything else.

The proper garb too insure warmth despite the temperature is essential. With a warm room for dressing accessible there is no reason why this invigorating and stimulating custom should not continue to grow in popularity.

Many men and women who of necessity must spend their working hours in-doors can obtain during their rest at night, at least a portion of the out-door air that Nature intended us all to have.

Sleeping porches can be constructed on the most modest homes at a comparatively small cost and in the majority of instances they can be guaranteed to save their cost in doctor bills. The change from sleeping in closed warm rooms to out-door sleeping must be brought about gradually, giving Nature time to meet the new conditions. The very old or very young demand more protection than the adult in the prime of life.

Making Pancakes.

To two pints of flour add two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one level teaspoonful of salt, two dessertspoonfuls of dried egg powder and mix thoroughly in a bread pan. Then add six heaping dessertspoonfuls of evaporated milk and enough cold water to make a batter of about the consistency of very thick cream. This consistency is the crux of the whole matter; the batter must be neither too thin nor too light. It should run from the mixing spoon in a continuous stream like thick syrup.

Fry in a frying pan kept greased with a piece of pork (not butter) held on a fork and moved about over the surface of the hot pan each time just before the batter is poured in. The idea of the grease is simply to keep the cakes from sticking to the pan. When more than sufficient for that purpose is used the cakes absorb it and are invariably heavy and greasy and indigestible as a result. —February OUTING.

A New Model Typewriter!

The No. 9 OLIVER The Standard Visible Writer

BUY IT NOW!

Yes, the crowning typewriter triumph is here!

It is just out—and comes years before experts expected it. For makers have striven a life-time to attain this ideal machine. And Oliver has won again, as we scored when we gave the world its first visible writing.

There is truly no other typewriter on earth like this new Oliver "9." Think of touch so light that the tread of a kitten will run the keys!

CAUTION!

The new day advances that come alone on this machine are controlled by Oliver. Even our own previous models—famous in their day—never had the Optional Duplex Shift.

It puts the whole control of 84 letters and characters in the little fingers of the right and left hands. And it lets you write them all with only 28 keys, the least to operate of any standard typewriter made.

Thus writers of all other machines can immediately run the Oliver Number "9" with more speed and greater ease.

WARNING!

This brilliant new Oliver comes at the old-time price. It costs no more than lesser makes—now out-of-date when compared with this discovery.

For while the Oliver's splendid new features are costly—we have equalized the added expense to us by simplifying construction.

Resolve right now to see this great achievement before you spend a dollar for any typewriter. If you are using some other make you will want to see how much more this one does.

If you are using an Oliver, it naturally follows that you want the finest model.

17 CENTS A DAY! Remember this brand-new Oliver "9" is the greatest value ever given in a typewriter. It has all our previous special inventions—visible writing, automatic spacer, 6 1/2 ounce touch—plus the Optional Duplex Shift, Selective Color Attachment and all these other new-day features.

Yet we have decided to sell it to everyone everywhere on our famous payment plan—17 cents a day! Now every user can easily afford to have the world's crack visible writer, with the famous PRINTYPE, that writes like print, included FREE if desired.

TODAY—Write For Full Details and be among the first to know about this marvel of writing machines. See why typists, employers, and individuals everywhere are flocking to the Oliver. Just mail a postal at once. No obligation. It's a pleasure for us to tell you about it.

and a set of

Pure Aluminum Combination Cooking Utensils

The Set Consists of Six Quart Berlin Kettle with Safety Cover Prevent Boiling Over.
 Two and One-Half Quart Pudding Pan.
 Two and One-Half Quart Colander and Strainer.

The peculiar construction of these utensils enables usewife, by using them singly, and in combination one another, to make up the following utensils:

A six quart Berlin Kettle with safety insert cover. The pudding pan inserted, produces a quart double boiler, superior to all others, because the boiler part is entirely submerged in hot water, and the contents cooked more quickly.

Invert the pudding pan and place on top of kettle to produce self-basting roaster, which roast meat on top of stove, with flame turned to one-third usual volume, retaining all original flavor and making it exquisitely tender.

Insert the colander in the kettle and cover with pudding pan to produce a regular 5-quart steamer.

This is the most practical cooking set that has been placed on the market, as each of the different articles used in its composition is complete in itself, and any housewife that has ever used one, will add her testimonial.

Gambling With Files.

We question whether it is a nuisance. During one of his mountaineering expeditions in Switzerland, Sir Leslie Stephens discovered that the fly could be made to play an unconscious part in a gambling game. "Last night," he says in a letter written to his wife from Zermatt on September 16, 1870, "six of us got to playing fly-loo. This means that every one puts down a lump of sugar and a ten-centime piece in front of him; and the one on whose sugar the first fly settles gets the money."—London Chronicle.

Down in Buck Valley, Fulton Co., they blew up a Mormon Church with dynamite. The Church was a new structure to be dedicated on the following Sunday. There is quite a feeling in the Valley against the Mormons, who have been making some gains in membership recently and it is thought that the act was perpetrated by the antagonists.

Mayor Koon, of Cumberland, was prevailed upon to send his blood hounds to the Valley to trail the dynamiters out. The hounds could not follow the trail. They ought to have known that blood hounds could not follow Christians. They leave no scent.

If some folks we knew were to go to the dogs, the dogs would change their location immediately.

TAFT VS PROGRESSIVES.

Rather bluntly and in terms easily understood ex-President Taft in an authorized statement thus takes the conceit out of the Roosevelt following: "The Republican party is not dependent on the Progressive leaders for success in the next campaign. The Progressive votes who have come back attached no conditions to their coming. The leaders who are left without support are using their genius for publicity to the greatest advantage, in order that they may create the impression that they are really leading a large force which they will throw one way or another as the nomination of the Republican party shall happen to please or displease them, and the most radical mistake the Republican party can make is to sacrifice its principles, either in its platform or in the character of the nominee, for the purpose of procuring their support. If the Republican party will nominate a regular Republican it can win; and if it cannot win with a regular Republican, it ought not to win in any event."

Pleasantville Castle, No. 310 Knights Golden Eagles, of Penna., convened in special session in the Eagle Hall, January 22, 1916, at 7 o'clock p. m. The Hall was filled to its full seating capacity, District Grand Chief, Geo. W. McVicker, of Windber, Pa., assisted with the following Past Chiefs, Grand Marshall, Nathan Hammer; P. G. C., Blair Mock; G. H. P., Adam Yarnal; G. C. G. M. Mock; G. V. C., H. A. Statler; G. M. of R., W. W. Rock; G. K. of E., W. E. McGregor; Grand Guardian, Perle Ickes; Publicly installed the following officers for the present term: P. C., H. C. Watkins; N. C., C. S. Mickle; V. C., William Rowser; H. P., R. B. Mock; V. H., W. Stuft; First Guard, Perle Ickes; Second Guard, Blair Mock, and after a short appropriate address by the District Grand Chief, the Castle closed, when, with one accord the line march was formed for the Hotel Watkins, where a banquet was spread and waiting our arrival. With tables groaning under their load of turkey and all the good dishes that go with it. Spreads were laid for sixty guests, which was amply filled. W. A. McGregor acted as toast master. After having a number of short and spicy toasts touching the occasion, Miss Ada Whitcomb, Miss Harriet Hann and Miss Edyth Whitnack, who acted as waitresses for the occasion, appeared in the dining room with their winning smiles and bearing burdens of good things to stay the appetite of the guests. And they deserve credit for the able and pleasant manner they performed their task, and it would be mild to say that every one present did justice to his appetite, without consideration for the stomach. During the remainder of the evening, we were entertained by vocal and instrumental music by the McGregor sisters. And by unanimous vote we all agreed that we had a magnificent time, to be remembered in the future, with pleasant reflections, and with hopes that we may have the pleasure of meeting in the future on a similar occasion. The land-lord and his good wife certainly merit great praise for the able manner of entertaining their guests. Persons desiring good meals and prompt and efficient treatment come to the Hotel Watkins and try them. The following persons were present: W. W. Rock, Miss Reba Rock, Adam Yarnal and wife, H. B. Mock and wife, Perle Ickes and wife, H. A. Statler and wife, Lawrence Diehl, Miss Maggie Clark, Jesse Rowser and wife, D. D. Hann and wife, R. B. Mock and wife, J. E. Blackburn and wife, G. M. WASHINGTON LETTER

Interesting Notes From Our Correspondent at National Capital.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25, 1916.

Whether or not Congress shall enact legislation for increased national defense is the all-absorbing topic in legislative circles. The consistent policy of the Federal government for years has been a gradual increase of defensive preparation corresponding to the growth of the country in population, wealth, and importance. The proposals pending before Congress, in the scheme for increased national "preparedness," calls for extraordinary increases in our army and navy and the supply of equipment and ammunition. Thus far the proposals have not seriously included plans for deepening our internal waterways or a system of coastal canals to permit the transport ships of war and submarines from one port to another should a foreign foe bottle up our ports.

Hearing on the administration army increase bills by the Senate military committee may be concluded this week, and the bills presented to the Senate for consideration. Brig. Gen. Crozier, chief of ordnance, told the committee that the European war had shown the necessity for providing machine guns on a scale never heretofore dreamed of. He showed the report that 90 German soldiers with 40 machine guns had kept a whole French army at bay for weeks.

A note of political discord was heard in the assertion of Senator Lodge, whose views are usually patriotic upon matters of foreign policy, before the closing banquet of the national Security League, which has met in Washington. The Senator asserted that so long as members of Congress think more votes can be obtained by making appropriations for roads, rivers, harbors, and public building, than by making appropriations to strengthen the defenses of country, just so long will they continue to make appropriations for road, rivers and harbors, and buildings.

President Wilson is urging the leaders in Congress to hustle to get the routine appropriations bills and legislative measures pushed along so that there may be time for the big work of the session—preparedness—and an early adjournment possible. It has been the hope of the President and democratic leaders that Congress will conclude the important work mapped out for it and adjourn early, owing to the political phases of the summer and fall, but the outlook has been getting worse and worse for early adjournment, with the possibility of a snarl that may do the democratic party little credit in the approaching campaign.

In the speeches he is to deliver on his stumping tour beginning this week, President Wilson will emphasize the non-partisan character of his national defense program. He will ask support from people of all parties for measures he has suggested to Congress, on the grounds that these embody provision for the least expensive army and navy development that can be regarded as adequate to the country's needs. Committees in the towns where the President is to speak have been notified that the gatherings must not be regarded as partisan, nor any hindrance placed on the attendance of all parties where the President speaks.

The keynote of the set of speeches which the President evolved out of the deep study he gave the defense problem during his two days isolation on the yacht Mayflower the past week-end is that it behooves the United States to enter upon the new era now opening adequately equipped to protect herself against unfriendly designs of other nations, and further, to see to it that the common interests of mankind are fully maintained.

The State Department considers that grave and unjustifiable injury to American commerce may follow, should an attempt be made to enforce those provisions affecting business in this country of Great Britain's "trading with the enemy" act, which prohibits persons residing in Great Britain from trading with any corporations or individuals engaged in supplying the Teutonic powers or having business dealings with them.

Out of the discussion in which diplomatic Washington has been engaged since the news was published that Germany considered making a separate peace with Belgium, there developed the opinion that the publication itself was in the nature of a "peace feeler". In every diplomatic quarter, excepting only at the British embassy entire readiness to discuss the question of separate peace was manifested. From an authoritative source it was learned that the British policy is to fight to the finish, no matter whether Germany succeeds in concluding separate peace with every one of her allies.

The decision of the United States Supreme Court, upholding the constitutionality of the income tax law, in the opinion of administration leaders in Congress, has unfettered a fruitful source of taxation and made easier the revenue problem confronting the government. It was declared by Representative Hull, of Tennessee, that without any unusual or unjust changes the law can be made to yield an additional $100,000,000 annually, which is a sum of sufficient proportions to make it possible, if the leaders deem it advisable, to discard most of the miscellaneous taxes suggested by President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo with a view to meeting the $50,000,000 deficit in the Treasury and for army and navy expansion. At present the law brings into the Treasury about $85,000,000.

Speculation is still playing about a tariff commission—about taking the tariff out of politics—about putting the tariff on "a scientific basis", whatever that may mean. The latest story is that the President will ask such action of Congress. It was believed until recently that the federal trade commission had full power to deal with the tariff in certain directions, but now it is said the Chief Executive has come to the conclusion that the powers of that body are entirely too limited to meet the demands of the business for a real tariff commission. What the President will propose, it is said, is a broad gauge commission clothed with full power to treat the tariff in scientific fashion.

The fight of former representative, H. Robert Fowler, Herman Schulteis and Henry B. Martin, indicted with Representative Buchanan in the southern district of New York, against removal to that district for trial, is being bitterly waged before United States Commissioner Taylor here. The indictment alleges that the defendants conspired to restrain the shipment of munitions of war to foreign countries. The defendants' attorneys claimed that the indicted men were accused only of conspiring to influence others to prevent the manufacturer of munition products, and that this is not an offense against the Sherman law and compared their acts to propaganda against the use or manufacture of liquor, which if a restraint of commerce would make every temperance organization a conspirator.

Among the unique social features of the social season now on were the festivities of last week at which the President and Mrs. Wilson were the guests and hosts. The diplomatic dinner at which they entertained so brilliantly was an epoch in its way, representing as it did, the official solution of the complex diplomatic guest list which has sorely troubled Washington hostesses since the beginning of the war, by giving official dinners in turn in honor of the representatives of the contending European powers. The Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall, who has recovered her health, will resume the giving of receptions similar to those given the first winter of the administration, and will be among the most brilliant evening functions of the season.

SYNOPSIS.

Dudley Larnigan, disbarred attorney, attacks the liquor and vice trusts. He is killed by an agent of a secret society. The committee of fifteen, headed by Larnigan, is elected to take up the fight. Dorothy Maxwell, wife of the insurance man, is killed.

Bruce Larnigan is determined to sort in an effort to frame him up. The police commissioner is out of his mind in a fit of rage. Larnigan is a child of the town, one of the children of the town, one of the children of the town.

This man agrees to expose the truth. He is murdered by the gang. Bruce Larnigan is determined to sort in an effort to frame him up. The police commissioner is out of his mind in a fit of rage. Larnigan is a child of the town, one of the children of the town, one of the children of the town.

Bruce Larnigan goes to Chicago to fight the grain trust. He is followed by a doctor, is assaulted and thrown overboard. He is rescued by his long lost brother Tom, who returns to New York and takes up the fight. Dodson, the head of the grain trust, fearing exposure, kills himself.

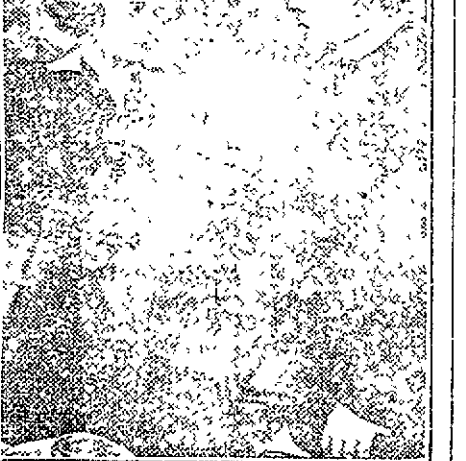

BRUCE LARNIGAN, lying helpless on his cot in a Chicago hospital as the result of the attack that had so nearly cost him his life, was still full, despite his pain, of his desire to crush the graft syndicate and avenge his father's fate as well as his own injuries. Unable to move himself, he accepted with delight the offer of his brother Tom to enlist in his place until he recovered.

"Our next blow should be at the textile trust, Tom," he said. "Ayers—C. Wood Ayers, its head—is as mean a scoundrel as any I have fought yet. He crushes out the lives of his workers and grafts by getting congress to add to the tariff on his products on the plea that he has to pay higher wages than European mills and so should have protection."

"He does, doesn't he?" asked Tom. "No; he pays the lowest possible wages to a lot of poor foreign laborers he is exploiting. Even now they are on the verge of striking, and I happen to know that he is planning to teach them a terrible lesson if they do. Go there, Tom, and see if you can save those poor people."

Tom, to avert suspicion, went to Lyndham, Mass., the site of the great Ayers mills, and obtained work as a laborer. Outwardly he was just like all the other workers; actually, he was able to learn many things.

Meanwhile Dorothy Maxwell, hearing of Bruce's almost fatal injuries, had been deeply shocked. She felt, though she knew that she could not prove this, that Stanford Stone was in some way responsible for what had happened to Bruce, and in spite of her father's pleas, she determined to break her reluctantly given promise to marry Stone.

"I'd do anything else for you, father," she cried, "but I can't do that! I'm afraid of him!"

When Stone called that night she gave him back his ring.

Stone did not at once show his power, however.

"It's girlish nonsense, that's all," he told Maxwell. "I shan't hold you responsible yet, man; don't be frightened. But, of course, if the worst comes the worst, I shall expect you to use your authority over her as her father."

"I won't come to that, I'm sure," she said to her senses in time.

Larnigan, deeply distrustful of would have been vastly had he known her decision.

As yet he had not dared to tell Bruce of her treachery, fearing the effect the news would have upon his brother in his weakened condition.

In Lyndham the threatened strike had been called. I. W. W. organizers, preaching the industrial revolution and the right of workers who were underpaid to make actual war, by destroying the property of their employers, were stirring up all sorts of trouble. Tom, while holding the deepest sympathy for the workers, advised them against the destruction of property.

But the I. W. W. men had more influence with the ignorant workers than Tom. Moreover, Ayers, with a refinement of meanness, was doing his utmost to provoke an outbreak. At his house once strangers appeared in town—men from Boston—who mingled with the workers and pretended to be among them. Acting under his orders, these men set fire to one or two buildings, and the strikers, of course, were blamed. As a result state troops were sent.

"Be careful," Tom pleaded. "They've got the soldiers now. What they want is a good excuse to fire into a crowd of strikers. They think that will create a reign of terror and that the strikers will all go back to work—with public sympathy on the other side."

Gradually Tom's counsel bore fruit. He was able to make the soberer spirits among the strikers listen to him and so prevent the I. W. W. men, whom he suspected of being secretly in the pay of Ayers, from inciting them to acts of violence.

Tom decided, too, to adopt an old trick of Bruce's. Trusting to his being unknown to Ayers, he slipped a note into his pocket one day.

"Bruce Larnigan is out of the way for the time, but his brother is not," ran the note. "I know your scheme here, and I shall block your plans. Be careful or you will be the first to suffer for the crimes of you and your associates, Tom Larnigan."

He was not, however, as unknown as he fondly imagined himself to be. The spies of Stone and Ayers were all around, and some hint of Tom's activities had already come to the graft syndicate. Even before he slipped the warning note into Ayers' pocket there had been discussions among the chief grafters as to the best means of securing his elimination from the fight.

Tom felt that he was terribly helpless. Above all he needed money, and he was almost penniless. And then one day chance brought help to his very door. An automobile had broken down outside of his cottage, and he went out to offer aid. To his amazement, he discovered that its only occupant was Ben Travers, with whom he had unsuccessfully prospected for gold in the west.

"Tom," cried Ben, "I've looked everywhere for you! I struck it rich last year, Tom. I'm a millionaire! Honest I am! What are you doing here?"

"It's a long story, Ben," said Tom. "Come in, and I'll tell you."

Ben accepted the invitation and listened, wide eyed with wonder, to Tom's tale. Tom then read a list of grievances of the textile workers.

"I want to buy a stack of chips and sit in that game!" Ben announced when Tom had finished. "By jolly, that's the sort of action I'm looking for! I guess my money will help, too—eh? You come to New York with me and I'll back your game to the last cent!"

So Tom was able, sure of all the financial backing he needed, to go to New York. And, arriving, Ben found an invitation to a reception in the home of Ayers himself.

"I'll take you with me—introduce you as my old partner," said Ben. "My partner you are, too, Tom—that goes!"

Ayers, at a meeting of the graft syndicate, produced his note of warning from Tom to the consternation of all and especially of Stone, who had believed Tom well out of the way.

"You're a joke, Stone!" said Ayers smilingly. "Leave it to me. I'll get rid of him!"

There was no opposition. One was glad to have some one else take the task of removing one of the hated and feared names of Lyndham.

At the reception, which was held that night, Ben and Tom were late in arriving. But Tom, making good use of his eyes and his ears alike, managed to pick up some information that seemed likely to be of value later. While he was so engaged Travers made a point of talking to Ayers and expressed great sympathy with the textile magnate in connection with the labor troubles at his mills.

"The better you treat 'em the more they want," said Ben in pursuance of his plan to catch Ayers off his guard. "I believe in sweating them! Working people are meant to work, not to strike for more money."

"You're a man after my own heart!" laughed Ayers, entirely without suspicion that Ben was only leading him on. "Why, they've even begun to threaten me personally. Look here! Here's a letter I got the other day."

From his pocket he pulled the note that Tom had sent him and smoothed it out for Ben to read.

"I'd like to meet the man who wrote that!" he snarled. "I'd show him whether or not it was safe to threaten me, the hound! But he'll keep out of my way, you'll see!"

"Tom Larnigan!" said Ben, seeming to be vastly surprised. "Why, my old partner here is always talking about a man of that name. Maybe he can find him for you. Shall I ask him?"

Ayers nodded. And Tom, coming up, grinned sourly at the sight of the note.

"Know him? I should say so, the skunk!" he said. "Saw him tonight."

"But he's no friend of yours, eh?" chuckled Ayers.

"Friend?" snapped Tom. "No, sir!"

"If you'll excuse your friend I've got a proposition to make to him," said Ayers slyly. He led the way to his library. "Look here," he said. "If you'll bring that man Larnigan here to me I'll pay you $1,000, cash down—tonight! That's all I want. You need not do anything more."

"Easy money!" said Tom, grinning. "I'll go out now and see if I can find him."

"Go, and good luck to you!" said Ayers, greatly excited.

Tom, as he reached the street, was amused.

"But I guess I'd do well to have some one with me if I go back," he reflected. "I mightn't get in otherwise, and I want to talk with Mr. C. Wood Ayers when he's alone."

He hung about for a time, wishing he knew some one who would be willing to impersonate him for a few moments. He dared not trust a stranger. He was afraid that he might encounter some spy. And, while he waited, by the strangest of coincidences he saw an automobile pass, in the back seat of which sat Dorothy Maxwell. Had he only known the truth he would have stopped that car at the risk of his own life.

For in it Dorothy was going to save him, as she believed. Deeply suspicious of Stone, she had been watching him, and she had learned that Stone, afraid that Ayers would fail, had sent Dunn, the successor of the dead bully, Black, to attack Tom at Lyndham. One of his women spies had spotted Tom, and had reported after Ayers had promised to take care of Tom. She was to go with two thugs and point Tom out to them.

Dorothy, determined to save Bruce's brother, disguised herself as this woman and succeeded in being taken along in the car in her place. It was as she set out upon this errand that Tom saw her, and, since he had recognized her at once, he had recognized her at once.

However, he dismissed Dorothy from his mind. And at last he decided to risk returning alone to Ayers' house. Until, as he feared it, he came upon a young man feeling, plainly helpless, from drink.

"The very man!" thought Tom. "Here, bucko," he said, taking the young fellow's arm. "I'll look after you."

"Mush 'blished," said the young fellow. He went along as meekly as if Tom had been his oldest friend.

Tom's plan worked to perfection. "Ah, you got him! Good!" cried Ayers. "Here, take him in and pitch him on to that sofa. I'll settle with you before I talk to you."

Tom obeyed. Then he followed Ayers into the library.

"Keep your money," he said. "I've tricked you, Mr. Ayers. It's I that am Tom Larnigan."

Ayers staggered to his feet.

"You?" he cried. "My God, who is the other man?"

He leaped for the door. And Tom, following, saw that the couch had mysteriously closed. Suddenly he understood. The sofa was a "murder couch," designed to close and kill its occupant! It was murder Ayers had planned—the murder of an innocent man that Tom had, unwittingly, helped him to do.

Ayers struggled desperately with the couch. At last he got it open. The young man was there—dead, and Ayers cried out in agony at the sight of his face.

"I've killed my son!" he groaned. "My only son!"

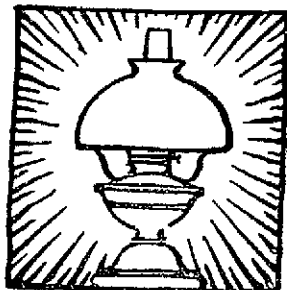

Slowly Tom passed out. He met a policeman.

"Here's my name and address, officer," he said. "You'd better go to the Ayers house. A case of something like murder."

And meanwhile Dorothy had aroused the suspicions of Stanford Stone's thugs. They had gagged and bound her and thrust her down in the car, while they went into a roadhouse to celebrate their success in advance.

LESSON FOR JANUARY 30

THE LAME MAN LEAPING.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 3.
GOLDEN TEXT—Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none; but what I have that give I thee. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, walk."—Acts 3:6 R. V.

The coming of power (chapter 2) is soon tested outside of the circle of believers. It is put to a public test, is tried as to its efficacy physically, i. e., has the Holy Spirit power physically as well as over the spirits of men?

1. The Appeal to Peter and John, vv. 1-10. Following Pentecost the disciples seem to have continued their accustomed mode of life. (1) The apostles and worship (v. 1). As yet, and indeed for many years to come, there was no particular separation of Jews and Christians.

Praying men like these two leaders, Peter and John, continued to fulfill their temple duties. The ninth hour was the prayer hour, the hour of sacrifice (Ex. 29:39, I Kings 18:36).

All true approach to God must be on the grounds of sacrifice (John 14:6, Heb. 9:22) and we must remember that this hour was the one at which Jesus died for us, our sacrifice (Heb. 10:19, 29).

Emphasize the need and importance of worship and prayer.

(2) The afflicted one (v. 2). This man had been there often and made his usual appeal; his expectation was limited to material aid (v. 5); he may or he may not have been familiar with Christ and his teachings, but something unusual was about to happen because the two to whom he appealed really knew God and on them now rested this new power in the world.

(3) The apostle's response (vv. 4-7). Peter took a good look at the man (v. 4). Peter was changed by a look (Matt. 16:7). What he saw was the man's fundamental spiritual need. (a) Demanding the man's undivided attention, Peter gave the man what he had not—not what the man wanted or expected.

Peter's words, "Look on us," and Paul's "be ye followers of me" (I Cor. 4:16) are in no wise egotistical, but in each case the fearless appeal of a man wholly God's, men conscious of the endowment of power, trying to seize the wavering wills of men that they might point them to Christ. (b) Peter aroused the man's expectancy.

It is usually men lacking in silver and gold who give to the world its greatest blessings and highest good (I Cor. 4:11).

Every effective Christian worker must base his appeal upon the facts of a personal experience (I. Pet. 4:10). (d) Peter bade the man to do the very thing he (humanly) could not do, but the thing which, "in the name of Jesus Christ" he would be able to do.

(4) The result. (1) Upon the man there is no doubt as to the completeness of the cure (v. 8). He said "strengthen" was "lifted up" from his former position of weakness; he "leaped" (literally, ecstatic joy); he "walked," continuous activity; and he "worshiped," thanksgiving and reviving of strength. (2) Upon the people (a) "All the people saw." They may not have heard or comprehended the words of Peter, but they did witness the transformation. (b) "They took knowledge" (v. 10), they began to observe, even as the world always does, the one who professes his faith in Christ? (c) They were filled with "wonder and amazement" (v. 10), they could not understand. No more can the world of today (see I Cor. 1:18, 23) really comprehend the Christian. There was no guesswork, however, about this miracle, and of the people who witnessed it and were so filled with wonder and amazement, many were converted (ch. 4:4).

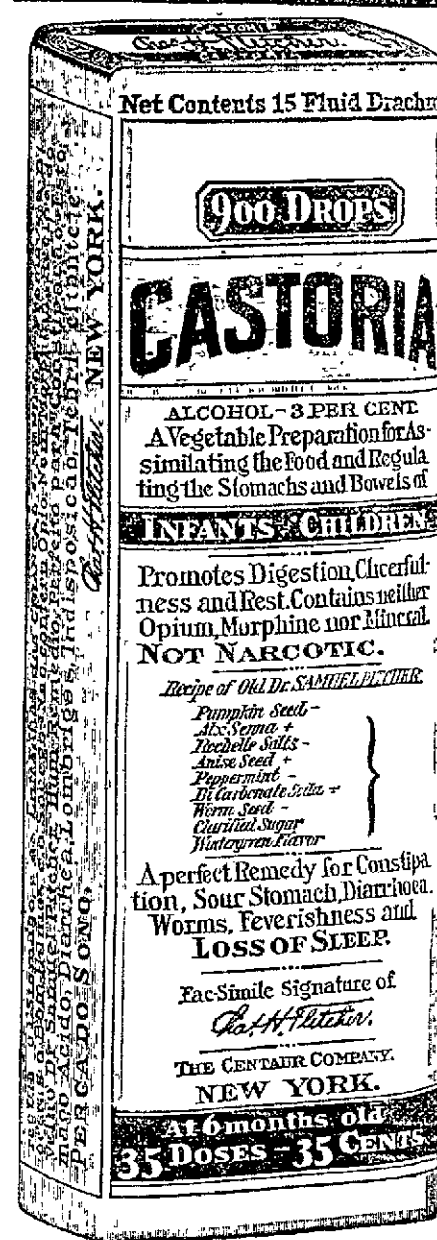

The miracle served to get for the gospel a good hearing and it accomplished its purpose (Rom. 1:16).

11. Peter's Appeal to the People, vv. 11-26. Notice it was the man who attracted the crowd, not Peter or John, for he eagerly held the disciples while the crowd gathered (John 5:10, 11). This may suggest the weakness of the man's faith in that he depended upon Peter and John rather than upon Jesus. (1) Peter seized this opportunity (v. 12) and began his salutation by taking advantage of their curiosity.

Peter eagerly turned their thoughts from himself unto Jesus. He wished to divert attention from himself and used the miracle for the double purpose of glorifying Jesus Christ and to convict these men of their sin.

Verses 13, 14-15 contain the charges, whereof Peter and John were "witnesses." They were not to look upon "us" as though they had done anything, nor was it some new God of whom they witnessed (v. 13). The act of the crucifixion, he grants, may have been consummated in ignorance (v. 17), but since God had raised Jesus from the dead, and this doctrine of the resurrection was now, therefore they ought to repent even though their acts were in accord with prophecy.

Peter appeals to Jewish pride. Is such an appeal legitimate?

Sabbath School Class Social.

The "Look Out" Bible Class of the Methodist Sunday School of which Mrs. A. W. Fletcher is President, and Mr. J. W. Gailey is Teacher, were very highly entertained in a social and literary program at the home of Mrs. A. W. Fletcher, on Friday evening, of last week. There were present about (15) members and friends of the Class.

The Meeting was very brilliantly opened by the President, who made some suggestions for the consideration of the class. This was followed by a reading by Mrs. G. W. Faus. Mrs. Geo. T. Jacobs then entertained in song in her usual pleasing manner, which delighted all present. "Our Father Who art in Heaven" was well recited by Mrs. J. Wy Boor. Remarks were also made by Rev. Faus and Mr. J. W. Gailey. After which all joined in toothsome refreshments, ice cream, cake, candy and nuts, which the Hostess knows so well how to "fix" just right.

All had a good time, and best wishes were extended for the future of this excellent Class.

remnant day

friday--this week

January 28th.

If there is any time that pays people to come to this store, it's when we make our Semi-Annual Remnant Day—the time that every Remnant from Calico, Flannelettes, Dress Goods, to fine Silks—every suit, skirt and waist length takes its final mark-down and moves out—every piece carefully measured—yards and prices plainly marked in Red Ink on each and every item—so much for the piece.

No difference whether they're Remnants—surplus or odd lots—of whatever nature—lowest cost to the finest—Laces or Novelties—ready-to-wear—underwear or outside wear—for women, men, misses and children—China, Silverware, Rugs or Curtains—everything we want sold in every department in the establishment—and there's lots we're determined shall go—all brought out Friday and priced to find a ready buyer on sight—It's the day we make a price—take a loss—and that ends it.

A vigorous and positive selling of all goods as referred to above—from the time the store opens at 8:30 A. M. till it closes at 5:30 P. M.—an all day sale—and every lot sold out, others as good will be brought to the front and sold on the same Red Ink basis.

Might be people who read this and still don't know the importance of this Semi-Annual Remnant Day—because words don't express what's to be done. Those people should ask their townspeople—their neighbors, who have known of Remnant Day for years past—whether or not this is worth coming for. After all—the test of any sale is the people's judgment of it—what they get for their money—and we believe anyone who has come to this establishment on any past Remnant Days—will recommend—enthusiastically—that all who can should come—no matter where you live.

Remember, it's Friday—this week—January 28th.
